English 388: Topics in Lesbian and Gay Studies

Queer Theory

This course will provide an overview of the basic concepts and issues in contemporary Queer Theory. The course will begin by reviewing the central premises that helped define the field, such as social constructionism, performativity, and the critique of identity politics, and will proceed to examine recent issues in the field, including the impact of capitalism on sexual orientation, the relation between sexual identity and citizenship, and current debates about the desirability of assimilation into straight culture.

Instructor: Dennis Allen

Office: 439 Stansbury
Course Requirements:

Course grades will be based on a midterm (25%), a final exam (25%), and five two page response papers (50%).

The Response Papers: Should consist of a two page typed analysis of an essay from the course reading assignments. These should not summarize the reading but should engage it intellectually. In other words, a response to a particular essay should do one or more of the following: critique the essay, apply it to a literary or cultural text, or relate it to previous reading in the course. Also, if an essay proves exceptionally difficult, your response paper on that essay could present some focused, specific questions on points that you did not understand.

Attendance: You are allowed three absences. If you miss class a fourth time, you will fail the course.
