Overview

English 680, Introduction to Literary Research, is designed to introduce first-year Master's degree students to the research and writing skills necessary for advanced study in English. While research and writing skills will continue to be developed in other courses, this course provides an explicit foundation for understanding the expectations for and forms of research. The Graduate Program Committee has specified that ENGL 680 cover three areas:

Research methods: locating, evaluating, and incorporating information from a variety of primary and secondary sources

Genres of academic writing: understanding the expectations conventions of academic genres

Textual studies: understanding the technologies of the transmission of texts

This term, we will use Thomas Jefferson's Notes on the State of Virginia as a common primary text from which to work on these areas. Reports on case studies in textual scholarship will open the research context to other fields of British and American literature. In the final project, we will return to Jefferson studies or a closely related research context.

Policies regarding late work and attendance

Except for extraordinary circumstances, late work will not be accepted. If you must miss class, email me before class, attaching the work that is due that day.
If you must miss class (for contagious illness, emergency, etc.), please notify me ahead of time and provide documentation. For every unexcused absence, your final grade will be lowered by one letter. We will follow WVU policy for cancellation on account of weather.

Assignments and grading Note: all work must be documented using MLA style. Further specifications for each assignment will be given separately.

- Final paper on topic of your choice in Jefferson studies or a related research context (8 pp. plus works cited). 20 points

Books on reserve at Wise library

Many of the books you'll need are in the reference section (non-circulating). The following books from the circulating section have been placed on course reserve:

Kevin Hayes, ed., Oxford Handbook to Early American Literature.

Frank Shuffelton, ed., Cambridge Companion to Thomas Jefferson.

If you use other books from the circulating section of the library that you think will be of general interest, please consider carefully reshelving them rather than checking them out, so they will be available to your fellow students.
