ENGL 132: Corruption and Sex in The Short Story and the Novel

A course entitled the Short Story and the Novel will definitely be about short stories and novels. We will interrogate the forms, structures, and styles associated with these two genres in tandem with themes connected to Corruption and Sex. These two themes can be defined in multifarious ways, and we will reserve the implications of foregrounding them (both jointly and separately) for the class proper.

Course Aims/Goals

This course fulfills GEC Objective 5, where you are expected to apply methods and principles of critical inquiry to the analysis of literary or artistic expression; and Objective 7, which enjoins you to develop knowledge critical to the understanding of the issues that shape the culture of the United States. Ultimately, should be able to critically engage literary texts and genres through close reading and writing exercises, as well as via extensive discussions and research. The single most important currency in this class is what you think, and the open-ness to test it.

Course Requirements*

- Participation in class discussion (10%) – As a literature class, we thrive on the ability to engage with texts both in and outside the classroom. You all have an opinion informed by your own experiences and observations, and the class will be richer if you share them. Your participation grade is therefore informed by the thoughtfulness of your responses (written and/or oral), respect for others’ submissions (even if you don’t agree with them), group work, and your overall engagement in class activities. Respectful, engaged participation in class discussion will boost your final grade, while a lack of positive participation may lower it. Please read the assigned texts BEFORE a particular class. Everyone will be expected to contribute to proceedings in class; your opinion counts!

- Twitter Responses (10%): Your participation will be complemented by tweets that should demonstrate clear connections to the text for the particular class day. Think about how you can engage with the piece in memes, links to multimedia, and/or in 140 characters (or even less). Be sure to tweet to my WVU handle @koa_WVU. You are required to make at least tweet per class, and these should be done at least 3 hours before class.

- Quizzes (10%): These will be unannounced short-answer questions that focus on textual details and close reading, typically with a specific question.

- First Word (5%) – At the beginning of each class starting August 19, one student will give a brief presentation (maximum 5 minutes) to start the day. In your presentation, you can say a few words about the author, time-period, text, a contemporary to the author, and/or why you think the author/text should be (or not be) included in the syllabus. There will be guidelines to help with structure if necessary.

- Proposal/Annotated Bibliography (25%): You will draft a proposal that informs your audience of the direction in which you want to take your final paper. Added to this proposal will be an annotated bibliography, which not only acknowledges academic conversations related to your project, but also demonstrates the knowledge you plan to add to the issue at hand.

- Midterm Presentation (10%) – You will talk to the class about the project you have decided to work on. We will agree on the format for this presentation.

- Final Paper (30%) – We will decide on a format for this paper, which will be the culmination of a semester worth of research, writing, and argument.

*The rubric for each course requirement will be discussed in class and then shared on eCampus for easy reference.
Course Policies

• Attendance: This is a participatory class. You may miss three classes (a week of class) without penalty. Missing more WILL diminish your overall grade. Lateness is rude and disrupts discussion and small group work. If you are more than 10 minutes late, your lateness will count as half of an absence (two times being late = one absence). The only excused absences are for University-sponsored activities (e.g. class fieldtrips and sports related events).

• Texts in Class: Bring the required reading material to class in either electronic or print formats in order to cite directly from the works and to find references easily. Be sure to complete the assigned reading before class.

• Late Coursework: Turning in your work late will impact negatively on your grade for the course requirement in question, and will be accepted in very limited circumstances. There will be no room for late submission of your final paper.

• Inclusivity Statement: The West Virginia University community is committed to creating and fostering a positive learning and working environment based on open communication, mutual respect, and inclusion. If you anticipate needing any type of accommodation in order to participate in this class, please advise me and make appropriate arrangements with the Office of Accessibility Services (293-6700). For more information on West Virginia University's Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion initiatives, please check http://diversity.wvu.edu

• Plagiarism: WVU’s policy regarding plagiarized work can be found online at: http://studentlife.wvu.edu/studentconductcode.html (see Section B of Article III). We will discuss plagiarism in class, but it is your responsibility to be familiar with the WVU policy.

• Conduct: I expect all members of the class to be respectful of each other and me, regardless of religious, social, or political differences. I will not condone discriminatory remarks regarding race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, religious belief, health, economic status, etc. Disruptive behavior may negatively impact your class participation grade and, if egregious enough, result in your expulsion from the class. Be mindful that the best way to participate in class is to both talk and listen to what others have to say. I don’t expect class members to agree, but I do expect that you will acknowledge other points of view.

• Eberly Writing Studio: The WVU English Department has this great resource in Colson G02. You should definitely check it out, especially since you will be writing a research paper.

• Office Hours: My office hours are a chance for us to benefit from one-on-one interactions. Drop in during the time at the top of the syllabus and I will be happy to discuss anything related to the course. Alternatively, shoot me an email (which I will respond to within 48 hours of the working week).
