Course Description
Enrolling in this class means that you have successfully completed English 213 (introductory poetry workshop) and are here now to hone your craft as a poet. To do so, we will learn to read as writers; that is, we will read with an eye toward identifying the inner workings/architecture/music/image patterns/risks of a poem. This class assumes that you’ve done a fair amount of reading and writing already and that you hunger for more. English 313 should simultaneously satisfy that hunger and fuel it.

Texts

Course Requirements
Because critical thinking and creative writing go hand in hand, this class will require you to respond, via critical responses and via imitations, to a variety of contemporary poets. You will also write other poems, respond to the work of your peers, and take an active role in class discussions and activities. You will also take one exam. The final project will draw on all of this work and reflect your best efforts as a poet.

Your final grade will be reflection of all your work (graded and not), your readiness for class, your participation, and your general attitude. As has often been remarked, the main reason to take a writing workshop is to save some time. That is, if you turn yourself over the demands/structure/community of the class (both your peers and your teacher), you just might learn a thing or two more quickly than if you did things on your own. That’ll be our aim here, and to that end, you’ll need to be willing to read, write, revise, and give and receive honest/constructive criticism. A bit of kindness and a positive attitude might come in handy too.

Attendance
I take attendance seriously; so should you. This class is, I assume, something you’re choosing to take, so attendance shouldn’t really be an issue. In case it is, however, here’s the policy: you’re allowed (but not entitled!) to three absences. Beyond that, your final grade will go down 1/3 for each absence. Once you reach six absences, you will fail the course no matter how “well” you are doing. Excessive tardiness (as defined by me) and lack of participation (again, as defined by me) will also result in a lowered final grade. If you are absent for some unavoidable reason, it’s your responsibility to contact me and/or a classmate and keep up with all assignments.

Attendance at Department-sponsored Readings
Although attendance at readings is not required, I certainly encourage you to come whenever possible, and, moreover, I assume you’ll want to attend and I look forward to seeing you there.

Spring 2013 Readings

Monday, January 28: Mark Brazaitis and Amanda Cobb, 7:30 p.m.
Gold Ballroom

Tuesday, February 12, Appalachian Prison Book Project benefit reading, w/ Jim Harms, Katie Fallon, Tony Christini & more, 7:30 p.m., 130 Colson Hall

Tuesday, February 26: Kevin Oderman & Jessie Van Eerden, 7:30 p.m., Robinson Reading Room

Tuesday, March 5: Valerie Boyd, 7:30 p.m., Robinson Reading Room

Wednesday, March 20: Mary Ann Samyn, 7:30 p.m., 130 Colson Hall

Thursday, April 18: Calliope 7:30 p.m., 130 Colson Hall

Thursday, April 18: ENGL 418 Capstone, 11:30 a.m., 130 Colson Hall

Thursday, April 25: Graduating MFAs, 7:30 p.m., Rhododendron Room

Grading
This is a rigorous course. An advanced course. My aim is to give you many ways to learn the craft of poetry: through reading and writing, creative critical thinking and critical creative expression.

It should go without saying that high-level work is always on time, fully proofread, sophisticated in thought and careful in execution. Some “talented writers” can and do produce very sloppy work; conversely, some “less talented writers” can and do excel because they take care with assignments.

I will be grading prose writing using percentages: 93-100% for A; 90-92% for A-; 87-89% for B+; 83-86% for B; 80-82% for B-; 77-79% for C+; 73-76% for C; 70-72% for C-; 67-69% for D+; 60-66% for D; 0-59% for F.

Within each grade, the basic characteristics are as follows:

An “A” level critical response would be a full-page, single-spaced; would address the prompt fully and with examples; would quote and cite those examples appropriately; would provide an answer that is clearly the result of sustained interaction with the text and sophisticated reflection upon it. It would also be enjoyable and interesting to read.
“B” (85-92) level work would probably demonstrate less insight/sophistication and/or might make errors in poem analysis or citation.

“C” level work would merely go through the motions, answering the question in minimal and likely more obvious ways. There would probably be various errors in terms of grammar or citations. There may be few examples and/or the question might not be fully answered.

“D” level work would show sub-par effort in several of the mentioned categories.

Poems (including the imitations) will be not be graded, but they are considered assignments with definite due dates. Late poems are neither accepted nor workshopped. Imitations need to be just that: imitations. We'll discuss what this means during the first week of class. In order to be successful in this class, your work does need to show improvement. That means listening to the suggestions from workshop and resisting the impulse to stay with what's comfortable.

The exam will require you to use terminology correctly and analyze poems that we have not discussed extensively in class. You may also be asked to do some quick creative writing.

The final project, to be announced at a later date, will require that you show increasing sophistication as a writer and reader.

Your final grade will, of course, be the composite of all these assignments along with your participation, general readiness for class, and attitude.

If you have any questions about the grading policies or any other aspect of this course, I encourage you to speak with me.

I consider this course to be a joy—as should you. If it sounds otherwise, you may need to ask yourself what you were expecting.

Social Justice
WVU is committed to social justice, as am I. That means you can expect a learning environment that is constructive, based on mutual respect and non-discrimination. If you have any questions, please let me know.

Plagiarism
Plagiarism, as you no doubt know, is passing off someone else's work as your own. Please don't do this; it will only complicate my life and quite possibly change the trajectory of yours in very serious ways.

Carruth Center
If you ever find yourself overwhelmed with work or emotions or are just in general need of assistance, I urge you to get help at WVU's Carruth Center: 293-4431. Figuring out how to write is good; figuring out how to live is better, and crucial.
Schedule (Please note: changes can and will occur. It is your responsibility to keep in touch with me if you are absent and to complete all assignments on time.)

Week 1

Tues/Jan 15
Course intro.
For Thursday: read in American Alphabets and come to class with a few favorites to discuss with the rest of the class

Thurs/Jan 17
Discuss first reading of American Alphabets
How do poems make meaning?
For Tuesday: Essay #1: choose one poem and discuss in one carefully written single-spaced page how that poem makes meaning: what are its major craft strategies?

Week 2

Tues/Jan 22
Essay #1 due. Discuss.
Discuss imitation.
For Thursday: Poem #1

Thurs/Jan 24
Poem #1 due with copies
Begin workshop
For next Tuesday: finish commenting on all poems.

Week 3

Tues/Jan 29
Workshop
For Thursday: read AA, concentrating on poems that are more narrative in nature.

Thurs/Jan 31
Finish workshop
How does narrative work in poetry?
For Tuesday: Essay #2: discuss one poem whose means and aims are primarily narrative. One page, single-spaced.

Week 4

Tues/Feb 5
Essay #2 due
Preparing to write a narrative poem
For Thursday: Poem #2

Thurs/Feb 7
Poem #2 due with copies
Begin workshop
For next Tuesday: finish commenting on all poems.
Week 5

Tues/Feb 12       Workshop
For Thursday: read AA, concentrating on poems that are more lyric in nature

Thurs/Feb 14      Finish workshop
What do we mean by lyricism in poetry?
For Tuesday: Essay #3: discuss one poem whose means and aims are more at the lyric end of the spectrum. One page, single-spaced.

Week 6

Tues/Feb 19       Essay #3 due
Preparing to write a lyric poem
For Thursday: Poem #3

Thurs/Feb 21      Poem #3 due with copies
Begin workshop
For next Tuesday: finish commenting on all poems.

Week 7

Tues/Feb 26       Workshop
For Thursday: begin reading Pinsky's The Sounds of Poetry

Thurs/Feb 28      Finish workshop
Discuss The Sounds of Poetry
For next Tuesday: finish reading
For next Tuesday: find a few poems in AA that interest you in terms of sound and line

Week 8

Tues/Mar 5        Further discussion of The Sounds of Poetry
How to write a sound and line analysis
For next Tuesday: draft of sound and line analysis for small group workshop

Thurs/Mar 7       No class: I'll be at AWP

Week 9

Tues/Mar 12       Sound & Line analysis DRAFT due with copies
For Thursday: Sound & Line due

Thurs/Mar 14      Sound & Line analysis FINAL VERSION due
For next Tuesday: poem #4: a poem that pays particularly astute attention to sound and line

Week 10

Tues/Mar 19  Poem #4 due
Begin workshop
For Thursday: finish commenting on all poems

Thurs/Mar 21  Workshop

Spring Break

Week 11

Tues/Apr 2  Finish workshop
Exam prep
For Thursday: Exam

Thurs/Apr 4  Exam
For Tuesday: read AA, concentrating on “difficult” poems

Week 12

Tues/Apr 9  What makes poems “difficult”?
For Thursday: Essay #5: discuss a difficult-for-you poem.
One page, single-spaced.

Thurs/Apr 11  Essay #5 due
Exploring “difficulty” in your own work
For Thursday: Poem #5, private assignment

Week 13

Tues/Apr16  Poem #5 due with copies
Begin workshop
For Tuesday: finish commenting on all poems

Thurs/Apr 18  Workshop
For next Tuesday: Poem #6
Week 14

Tues/Apr 23  Workshop continued for Poem #5, if needed
            Poem #6 due
            Begin workshop
            For Thursday: finish commenting on all poems

Thurs/Apr 25  Workshop
              Discuss Final Project

Week 15

Tues/Apr 30  Finish workshop
             Work on Final Project

Thurs/May 2  Final Project Due

Questions? Email me at any time: maryann.samyn@mail.wvu.edu