INTRODUCTION

Welcome to English 101. This course focuses on developing your knowledge of writing in several areas beyond just grammar and punctuation. We will examine how we use writing to express personal ideas. We will practice using writing to learn new things. We will explore how writing can change depending who you write to. We will analyze how different types of communication like cartoons or music are a type of writing—or composing—that make meaning in people’s lives. Finally, we will develop a richer sense of how research and form can give your writing power and purpose. The goal is to help you be more aware of how language influences your personal, professional, academic, and civic lives, and how your knowledge of language and writing can positively impact those spheres.

The course theme of popular culture presents you with opportunities to consider the ways in which your daily culture shapes your lives, beliefs, values, and education. I encourage you to engage in the topics we will discuss and consider your opinions and contributions to be a part of the ongoing “conversations” about popular culture. We will consider the topic of popular culture in reference to the four course goals for English 101: rhetoric, inquiry, processes, and conventions. We will discuss how the rhetoric of popular culture and the ways in which purpose, audience, context, etc. apply to the topic. How does inquiry and analysis influence our interpretations and reactions of popular culture? How does our topic function in reference to processes? Does popular culture create marginalized perspectives? Is it inclusive? How does popular culture influence the process of our daily lives? Finally, are their distinguishable characteristics we can attribute to popular culture? We will use our course goals and juxtapose them with the theme of popular culture in order to strengthen our knowledge of writing.

ENGLISH 101 AND WVU’S GENERAL EDUCATION FOUNDATIONS

The General Education Foundations (GEF) provide students with academic and intellectual breadth to appreciate the broad context of their actions, their choices, and their world, beyond their major field(s) of study. The GEF strives to help students be thoughtful participants in a democratic society, and to achieve the intellectual integration and awareness they will need to adapt to changes and meet challenges in their personal, social, and professional lives.

English 101 addresses several of the learning outcomes described in WVU’s GEF program; however, this course focuses most explicitly on the outcomes for written communication and critical thinking. By the end of English 101, students should be able to do the following:

- Understand the roles of context, audience, and purpose in communication situations.
- Explain an issue or problem through description of key terms, perspectives, and points of tension.
- Use appropriate, relevant, and compelling content to explore and develop ideas for an audience.
- Use appropriate genre and grammatical conventions for varying communication situations.

- Integrate credible, relevant sources into writing to support ideas.
- Draw conclusions about topics or issues based on a wide range of information, viewpoints, and related outcomes

OFFICE HOURS & E-MAIL:

Office hours are an excellent opportunity to talk one-on-one about your writing, ask questions and get feedback on your work. You can also use the email address on this syllabus to ask quick questions or notify me of any urgent matters that need attention. I will typically respond within 24 hours. I will not review papers via email beyond the regular feedback cycle. You must schedule an appointment for that.

ATTENDANCE

Attendance is required for this course. We know that sometimes personal situations and required university events make it impossible for you to be in class. That's why a few absences are allowed but make sure you use them for emergencies.

- Students in all sections may miss one week of class without penalty. (That means you can miss 3 class meetings for this section because we meet on MWF.)
- Students who miss more than one week of class may be penalized up to one letter grade for each additional absence.
- Students who miss more than three weeks of class will be assigned a failing grade for the course.

All absences (including excused absences) incurred from the date you register for the course will count toward the total number allowed.

If you are struggling with an assignment, if you are unexpectedly ill, or if you have some other personal emergency, contact me immediately and we may be able to negotiate a special arrangement. Special arrangements like this require a formal, written request that includes an explanation of the circumstances, documentation (if relevant), and a detailed plan for completing any late or missed work. Submitting a formal request does not automatically guarantee that I will be able to grant your request.

Extended Absences. If you know in advance that you will need to miss more than three consecutive class meetings, you should take the course in another term. It is much better for you as a writer and as a student to take the course during a semester when your schedule allows you to be present to do your best work. If you are a military serviceperson with possible drill events or deployments please speak to me about a plan for successfully completing all required coursework.

Conferences. As part of our regular class meetings, the English 101 curriculum uses small group and individual conferences to provide you with more direct instruction on your specific writing projects. During the semester, you can expect to meet for conferences with me or with small groups of peers about three or four times. You can also expect that during a conference week, one regular class meeting will be cancelled in order to make room in our schedule for the conferences.

When we are meeting for conferences, you should plan to bring the following:

- any questions you have about the current project
- your exploratory writing you have completed for the current project
- any drafting you have completed for the current project

FEEDBACK AND GRADES

This is a portfolio-based class, which means you will not receive a letter grade on each individual assignment, but you will receive substantial feedback along with an overall letter grade at the midterm point and again at the end of the semester. Your mid-term and final grades are based on the following percentages:

Formal Writing (i.e. Portfolio) = 70%

Formal writing assignments include the major projects (narrative, profile, rhetorical analysis, and exploratory research paper) as well as reflective writing. For more about the formal writing grade, see page 2 of Work in Progress.

Exploratory Writing = 20%

Exploratory writing may take many forms such as summarizing a text, responding to a peer's writing, or composing a portion of a larger project. These writing assignments are typically shorter activities and homework that are about 1 page in length. For more about the Exploratory Writing grade see page 3 of Work in Progress.

Participation = 10%

Participation includes things like attending class, being prepared for class, making thoughtful contributions to class and meeting all deadlines for homework, drafts, and peer review. For more on the participation grade see page 4 of Work in Progress.

If you have any questions regarding your progress in the course, please let me know and we can set up an appointment to discuss your work.

SOCIAL JUSTICE

The West Virginia University community is committed to creating and fostering a positive learning and working environment based on open communication, mutual respect, and inclusion.

If you are a person with a disability and anticipate needing any type of accommodation in order to participate in this class, please advise me and make appropriate arrangements with the Office of Accessibility Services (293-6700). For more information on West Virginia University's Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion initiatives, please see <http://diversity.wvu.edu>.

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

You are responsible for the integrity of your work. This means that all of your work for this course must be your own and must be created specifically for this course. Failing to maintain the integrity of your work will have serious consequences. We will discuss academic integrity as part of our course, but here are a few things you need to know right away:

Submitting someone else's paper, including papers you obtain online, as your own writing is fraud. It will result in a failing grade for the course and may result in additional action by the Office of Student Conduct.

Copying paragraphs or other passages of someone else's writing without properly citing them is plagiarism. It may result in a grade reduction or failing the course. It, too, may result in additional action by the Office of Student Conduct.

The Eberly College of Arts and Sciences provides a helpful online resource for undergraduate students on understanding and avoiding plagiarism (<http://eberly.wvu.edu/undergraduate/ug-studies/preventing-plagiarism>). If you have any questions about when and how to document sources, or any other question that will help you avoid unintentional plagiarism, please talk with your instructor, a librarian, or one of the Writing Center tutors in Colson Hall.
